

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for creating a pattern on a substrate, the method includes the steps of imprinting a first pattern on the substrate; and imprinting a second substantially similar pattern which is mis-registered with regard to the first pattern
5 so that the combination of the first and second patterns cause a systematic variation in a final size of defined elements across the substrate.